Winds of Change for Project Management: A full day of presentations and interactive workshop sessions devoted to innovative applications and giant steps forward in good practices, and the need for continuing development of the profession to keep pace.

Our agenda for the day will include these presentations and workshop sessions:

AGILE METHODOLOGIES: DO THEY WORK?- Joe Wong PMP, presents lessons learned from a recent case where an agile methodology was used. A following open forum/panel discussion and a break-out session will discuss whether such a methodology could have changed the "worst" project you have ever had.

We are looking for panelists who have worked with Agile Methodologies to share their experiences. Please contact Maria Patten at mapatten@telus.net

REALITY PROJECT MANAGEMENT -Chris Quaife, PMP.
 Insights from the soon to be released, made in BC, "Management of Building Projects" manual The content arrived at, and the process for developing the manual, reveal that there is more - and less - to project management than is dreamed of in our philosophy. This reality extends to IT projects - or does it? After the manual is introduced, join an interactive session to discuss the implications for the management of projects in any industry

PROJECTIZING THE ORGANIZATION: Peter Mulholland, PMP.
 An interactive session on using project management to help small business; how the lessons learned can improve the day-to-day business of any organization.

PLANNING A PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM.
 Darlene Hope-Ross, PMP will lead a workshop in which the seminar participants will plan and organize a specific program of professional development activities aimed at the educational needs of Vancouver area PMPs. Break-out groups will recommend topics, knowledgeable presenters, and workshop facilitators, with a focus on the needs of practitioners in fields such as engineering-construction, information systems and technology, new-product development, and business process change.

A NEW GENERATION PROJECT MANAGEMENT APPROACH

David Conery, David Jones, and Patrick Trottier describe their work in developing an approach for improving organizational performance, and the success of projects in particular. They will discuss how the approach may be combined with OPM3 a new PMI standard to be released in December. Organizational Project Management refers to the systematic management of projects, programs, and portfolios in alignment with the strategic goals of an organization.

Project Manager for the event, Maria Patten, PMP, is seeking additional PMP presenters, workshop leaders, and discussion facilitators to complete the program. Please contact Maria Patten at mapatten@telus.net to volunteer and score some PDUs.
